

Agriculture, Food & Natural Resources: This career cluster entails producing food and raw materials, as well as conserving and managing natural resources.

Architecture & Construction: This field handles designing, planning and creating the buildings, structures and spaces we all live and work in.

Arts, AV Technology & Communication: This industry features the creation, promotion and distribution of artistic and media content.

Business Management & Administration: This broad arena includes roles related to the operations, strategy, marketing and management of organizations.

Education & Training: Centered on educating and mentoring individuals, roles in this field range from elementary school teachers to college professors. It also includes counselors and educational administrators.

Finance: This sector is concerned with the management of money and investments, including roles in banking, financial planning and insurance.

Government & Public Administration: Concerned with the function and governance of communities and states, Government & Public Administration includes roles in policymaking, public service and management.

Health Science: This cluster promotes health care services, with roles for health care practitioners and administrators.

Hospitality & Tourism: This specialty revolves around providing services related to travel, lodging, recreation and dining. Includes all facets of the industry.

Human Services: Careers in human services are committed to meeting human needs, often through helping professions like counseling, social work or childcare.

Information: This field leads the design, development, and maintenance of software, hardware and digital solutions.

Law, Public Safety, Security & Corrections: This cluster encompasses careers related to the enforcement of laws, protection of individuals and the judicial system.

Manufacturing: This industry focuses on creating products using advanced technology and automated production.

Marketing: This career cluster promotes products or services using advertising, public relations and sales strategies.

Science, Technology, Engineering & Math (STEM): This is a field dedicated to designing and developing solutions to complex problems across various industries.

Transportation, Distribution & Logistics: This sector prioritizes effectively moving and storing goods.